Mr Ferguson said it was a positive sign that popular events like the air show would continue to attract visitors to the Australian Capital. "There are no plans to change the date of the air show," he told AFP. The Government will invest $2.9 million in the event in response to what the Minister said was a "profoundly positive reaction" to the inaugural show last week. But despite numerous questions about the show following its closure, Mr Ferguson said it was yet to be decided how to invest in making the next Canberra Airshow a better-run event. He said the government expected the contribution from the event would be "more than the $2.9 million we invested in the first one." The air show, the latest in the line of Canberra's calendar of celebrations, is the largest government event in Canberra and attracts thousands of international visitors and locals. The First Minister for the Regional Development of the ACT, the Hon Paul Fletcher MP, was in the audience at a press conference, flanked by ACT Council Chief Minister Michael Matheson, and members of the public and the show's organisers to express support for the air show and its success. "It's very easy to be cynical about the air show, but I have been impressed by the response that I have received," Mr Matheson said. "I have not had one single negative comment." He said while the government would be paying its own money, the event was boosting tourism and economic activity in Canberra as a whole. Acting Chief Minister for Major Events, the Hon Gary Humphries, said "local employers" had expressed concerns about the initial lack of information provided about the air show in advance. But he said he expected the measures proposed by the government would

In the past, when playing live, I have turned up the CRT model on my music stand so I could watch all the knobs at once, especially the crossovers and the monitors. Then, if I caught an odd sound or an especially loud note, I could always go back to what I'd originally done. If I was in a band that could play without a band leader, I'd even go so far as to sing a full chorus through the pres and midi into the band's recording software. But if I'm the band leader, how can I now go back to what I did before I decided to just overdub the whole song live, with all the overdubs, all the editing done in the software? I guess I'm stuck playing the whole song many times through so that I can go back and forth. Re:
